NEWProducts*Transcervical Insemination

(TCI) is a technique that is popular because it can be used with any form of semen (fresh, fresh-chilled, and frozen). It is one of the few options that should be used with frozen or poor-quality semen. It is a good option for large and giant breed dogs and when only one breeding can be performed. This technique can be performed either with palpation or the use of an endoscope to help see the cervix. In this technique, a catheter is used to bypass the cervix and deposit semen directly into the uterus. Sedation is typically not needed, as most bitches will stand for the procedure.

Delee Suction Argyle Catheters are widely used for suctioning newborn puppies.

These catheters are sterile and disposable. Instill two drops of sterile saline into each nostril. Without applying suction, insert the catheter into the naris. Apply suction for 3 to 4 seconds using a rotating movement while slowly withdrawing the catheter. Hold the trap upright to prevent the secretions from going into the pump.

Canine Ovulation Kits & Detectors

It is a perfect device for breeders who experience problems with effective mating. Owing to this simple method, the breeder can detect ovarian cycle disorders and determine the best date of mating, even if external symptoms fail to indicate that. The device uses the relationship between changes in the electrical resistance of mucus and appearance of estrous.

Due to behavioral differences in dogs, the visible signs of heat and breeding time (such as flagging, bleeding, or readiness to breed) are unreliable and only an approximate indication of the fertile period. Accurate ovulation timing is best done by measuring the hormone progesterone in the blood. Progesterone levels begin to rise 1-2 days before the LH (Luteinizing Hormone) peak, giving the earliest sign of ovulation, thus providing both accuracy and convenience.

Determine whelping date (24 hour window) by measuring progesterone levels just before expected whelping date. About 24 hours before whelping, progesterone levels dramatically drop to very low levels. (C1 result)

McCulloch Medical™ ONE PUFF Aspirator/Resuscitator

#1050 McCulloch Medical™ ONE PUFF Aspirator/Resuscitator can be used on any newborn pup. It is designed to clear the respiratory passageway and pump air into the mask stimulating respiratory reflex.

$199.95

Simple, two-part, handheld instrument that clears breathing pathways and stimulates the first breaths of newborn puppies, kittens, and other small animals. One Puff™ is the safe and effective alternative to the use of traditional methods, such as shaking, flinging, or mouth-to-mouth. An invaluable tool for all veterinarians, breeders, and pet owners, it has saved hundreds of distressed newborns since its introduction. Aspirator pump "A" administers a safe vacuum suction to remove mucus from animal, while resuscitator pump "B" provides a small release of air to stimulate respiratory response. Especially effective for C-section births.

Why freeze canine semen?

There are many reasons for freezing canine semen. Perhaps the most important reason is to preserve and insure the breeding potential of a dog against loss, death or infertility. This allows the stud dog to sire puppies when he is no longer able to do so. Freezing semen also allows for the transport of genetic material both within and between countries.
